On the occasion of your retirement, I want to express again my sincere appreciation for the contributions you have made in your service with this Agency. I do not need to tell you how important your work has been, nor how much it has meant to have it in the hands of a man of your stature.

Through more than fifty-five years of military and civilian service to this country, you have maintained personal and professional standards of the highest order and set an example for others in the Government service.

You leave behind you a host of warm friends among your associates in the Agency, and I join them in extending to you best wishes for your full enjoyment of the coming years.

Sincerely,
